Over the last decade and with the development of e-commerce alcoholic beverages have permeated the fabric of our society and are viewed by many businesses as an integral part of today’s business model like no time in the post prohibition era. The conflict between the ease and convenience of e-commerce and the concepts of temperance has never been more relevant. Regulators and legislators are under constant pressure to expand license types or to “tweak” the three tier system. Alco-tourism in many cases is a joint venture between private industry and quasi-governmental agencies to promote the alcoholic beverage industry in their state or beyond. These developments beg the question: Is the principle of temperance dead or dormant?

PANEL #6: HUMAN TRAFFICKING & ALCOHOL – A DANGEROUS COCKTAIL

In today’s regulatory climate, the challenges loom large and so do the stakes. An alcohol license is a privilege to do business in our states, but in some cases, it is used as a license to engage in criminal behavior – for example, human trafficking. This panel comprised, in part, of state regulators and other federal law enforcement agencies discusses the importance of collaboration to address this particular problem, including advice for the “boots on the ground” ABC officers on evidence/warning signs and the relevant legal principles and penalties. Attendees will also hear from a victim who served as an indentured servant. Finally, the panel outlines programs available to help victims find their voice again, join recovery groups, and make successful transitions to independent living.

PANEL #7: “NO MORE KNOTS”- ETHICS CONSIDERATIONS FOR LAWYERS PRACTICING IN AN INDUSTRY WITH A VERY INTRICATE WEB OF RELATIONSHIPS

In the alcohol industry, we see many connections. Attorneys often advocate for clients in more than one way. How do they avoid a conflict of interest when they counsel more than one client operating similar businesses on regulatory compliance if the clients have opposing policy objectives? Government attorneys routinely interact with private actors, for example on compliance matters and requests for proposals for services, and they often step into roles in the private sector after leaving public service. How do they avoid violating their professional codes of conduct or their state’s laws on ethical conduct? This ethics session covers ABA Model Rules 1.7, 1.8, 1.9, 1.11, 1.13, 5.7 and 6.4. Join us as we watch two teams "draw" from their knowledge of legal ethics rules as they compete in a friendly game of “No More Knots.”

Mandatory reporting requirements in states allowing direct-to-consumer wine shipping have created tools for regulators to see just how much alcohol is being shipped unlawfully into their states. At the same time, retailers are pushing policy makers and the courts to expand the number of states where they can ship via common carriers. We’ll examine the shipping marketplace, state laws and enforcement, and court decisions beyond Tennessee to probe what are “subscription clubs,” whether personal importation laws can circumvent direct shipping bans, and whether shipping reports violate the privacy of consumers buying wine this way.

State agencies spend a significant amount of time, money and energy creating custom licensing, product registration and seed-to-sale systems; and the implementations may lead to a lot of frustration. This panel talks about lessons learned from successful and unsuccessful system deployments in order to help regulators who are tasked with adding a new system in the future. The panel also brainstorms alternatives to the traditional processes.

“Toward Liquor Control” greatly influenced states’ alcohol control practices today and perhaps the greatest influence of that 1933 commissioned study is, in itself, a lesson for making societal choices. Like that work, this panel frames the important considerations of what we must do next, who should or could do it, and why certain things need to be done now... before choices become entrenched and system changes become unwieldy.

- RICK GARZA, Director, Washington State Liquor and Cannabis Commission
- DOMINIQUE MENDIOLA, Colorado Deputy Director of Policy, Licensing and Communication for Marijuana Enforcement Division
- GERALD PASCARELLI, Equity Research Associate, Consumer Beverages, Cannabis & Tobacco, Cowen & Co.

9:30 AM – 10:30 AM PANEL #11: TO HAVE, OR NOT TO HAVE; FUNDING, THAT IS. HOW DOES NEW FUNDING INFLUENCE TTB OPERATIONS AND WHAT IS THE IMPACT?

For many years, TTB, not unlike many state regulatory bodies, had to work with the restricted financial resources they had. Then, a couple of years ago funding was increased and some said, “Oh, great!” 😁, while others said, “Oh, great!” 😞.

So, what has TTB done with the new resources and what has the impact been? Is it leveling of the playing field? Or, is it a shock to the system of some industry members? This panel will share past and present experiences with TTB and will discuss lessons learned moving forward.

11:00 AM – 12:00 PM  PANEL #12: THE IMPACT OF TWSRA V. BLAIR

In Tennessee Wine & Spirits Retailers Association, the U.S. Supreme Court will determine the constitutionality of residency requirements for alcohol retailers. This will likely be the most significant decision regarding the interplay between the Commerce Clause and the Twenty-first Amendment since the 2005 Granholm decision. A decision will likely be out by the time conference occurs. This panel would provide commentary on the decision itself, and its likely impact on litigation currently working its way through the federal courts of appeals, some of which may also end up before the Supreme Court.
